Corruption in Swedish public administration

Korruption i Myndighetssverige (Brå, 2014)

- In 2014 the Swedish National Council for Crime Prevention published the report "Corruption in government agencies".
- The report presents a study that focuses on corruption that seeks to influence the core domain of the work of public sector agencies – the exercise of public authority.
- The results and conclusions of the report can be summarised as follows:
Research on corruption remains limited.
- The Swedish Anti-Corruption Institute, emphasised the importance of the four cultures that increase the risk for corruption.

The methodological framework

The four cultures conducive to corruption

Blindness

[Blindhett]

“Corruption cannot occur here.”

Silence

[Tystnad]

“Mind your own business.”

Informal rules

[Informella regler]

“Rationalisations favourable to deviance.”

Efficiency

[Effektivitet]

“Choosing and creating shortcuts.”

Countries of analysis

Do not use the CPI as a time-series!

Points: 85/100

Rank: 3/180

For the third year running, the top seven countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index 2018 consist of the four Nordic nations – Denmark, Finland, Sweden and Norway. All score between 84 and 88 points out of 100 on the index.

Points: 52/100

Rank: 53/180

Theoretical lens

Bourdieu's (1989) micro-macro theory

01

Habitus - Blindness

Humans naively learn about the world and its axioms in a pre-reflective unconscious way.

02

Fields - Silence

A network or configuration of objective relations between positions occupied by social actors.

03

Capitals – Efficiency

Each field has dominant (and dominated) actors ranked in the order of power they possess.

04

Doxa (logic) – Informal rules

A product of a tacit agreement representing what seems obvious and normal in a field.

Criminological lens

General Strain Theory (Agnew, 1992)

Institutionalised means

Accept

Reject

Cultural goals

Accept

Reject

Conformity

Innovation

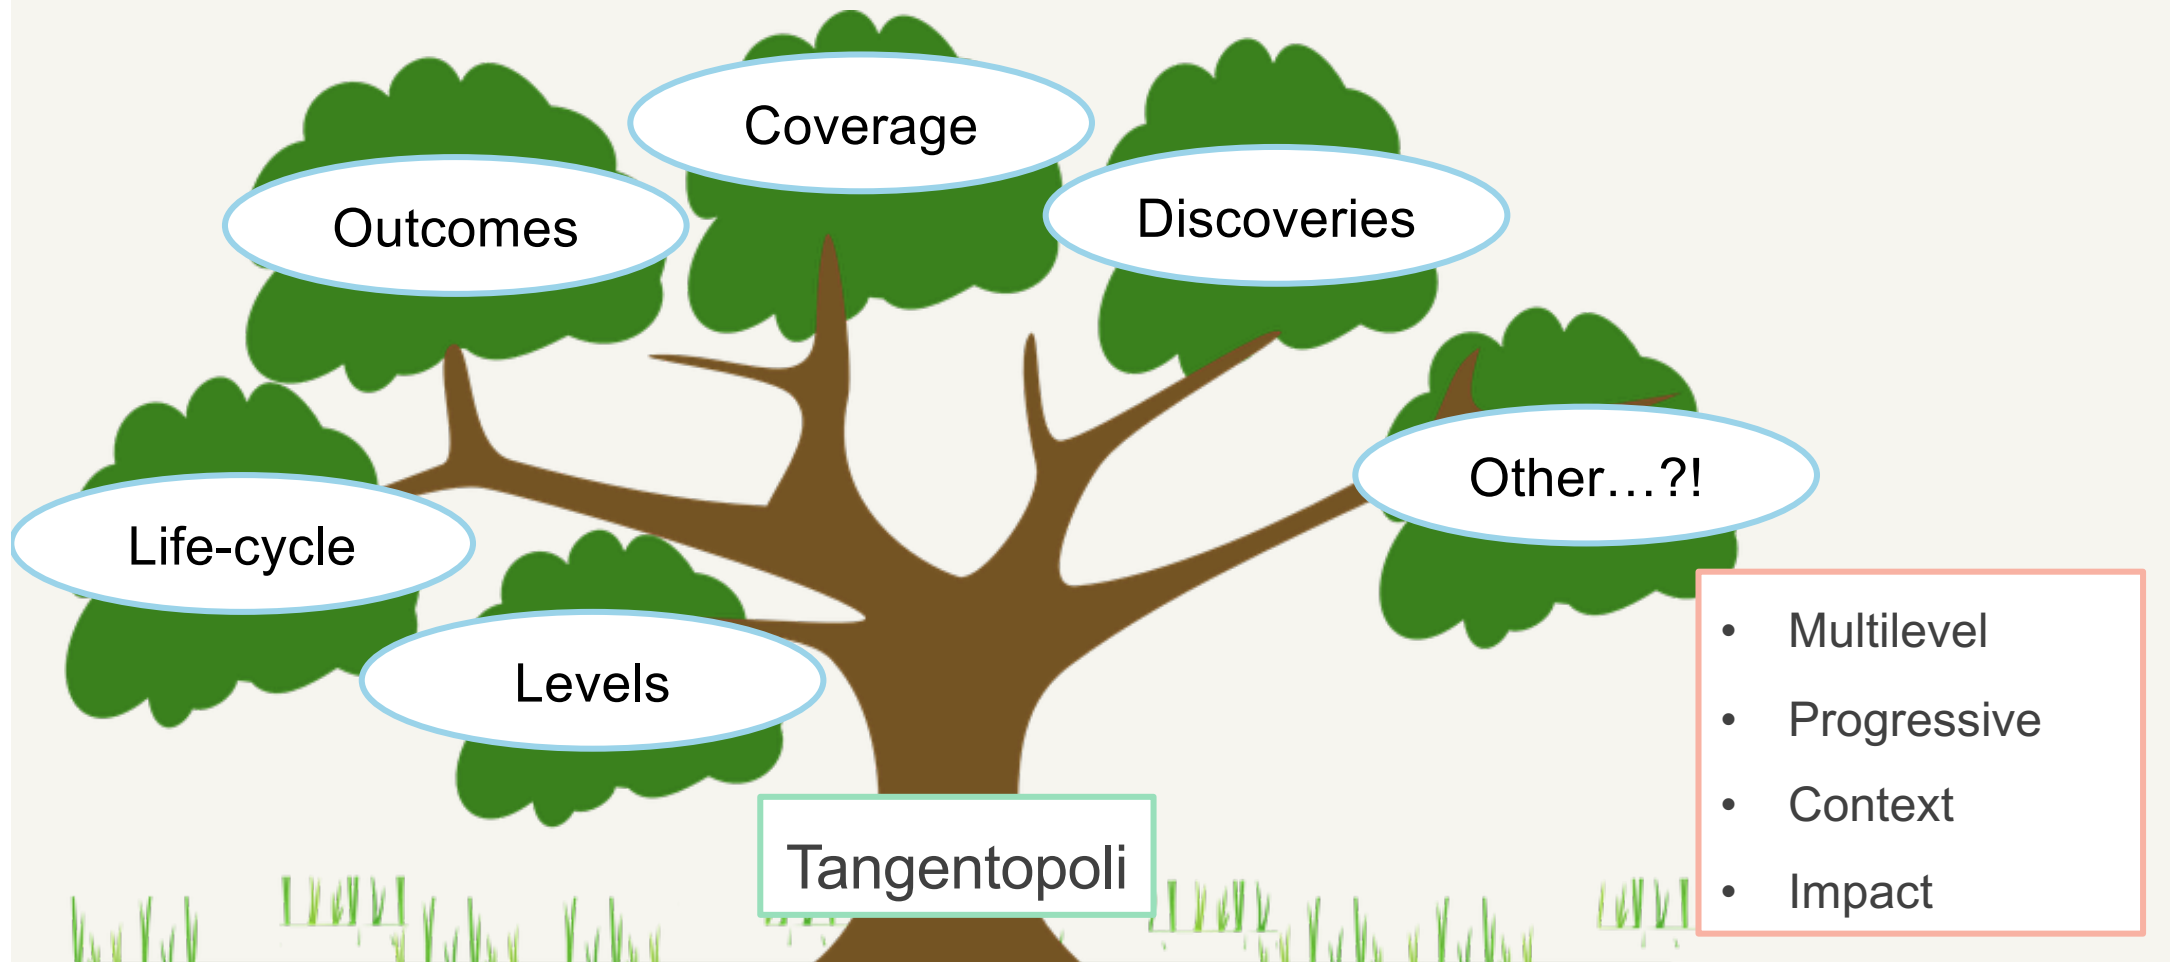

Ritualism

Retreatism

Accept	Conformity	Innovation
Reject	Ritualism	Retreatism
